Charge: The mission of the Office of the Vice President for Research is to enhance the University's contribution to the health of our society by moving scientific knowledge obtained by our research teams in collaboration with other institutions into clinical practice. The office will accomplish this mission by assisting individual faculty members in their research endeavors, promoting interdisciplinary and inter-institutional research, providing administrative support to the institution's research activities, and promoting the commercialization of our research team's discoveries.

The Office of the Vice President for Research has developed an Internal Advisory Board (IAB). The IAB is comprised of a small number of senior scientists that meet quarterly to discuss a variety of issues of relevance to the mission of the Office of the Vice President for Research and to provide guidance and feedback about all the activities of the office.
